How do you play your strengths to your advantage in your career: A positive attitude and strong work ethic are two key strengths that become contagious the more you demonstrate them. A positive attitude not only allows the work to get done effectively, but it also motivates the people around you to view the challenges and obstacles in a better light.

Having a strong work ethic builds great relationships with your team and this translates into a great experience for our customers. At various points in my career, I find that oftentimes my attitude and my willingness to get things done move our team forward in new and surprising ways.
