How do you play your strengths to your advantage in your career: I consciously leverage my greatest strength: successful project management and customer service to the proven benefit of our clients. Making sure that I take the time to hone in on the client's objectives for every project allows me to match team players who have the skill sets to meet the client's objectives. I also focus on communicating early, and often, and highlighting potential challenges immediately so that we can make any necessary adjustments with the project endpoint in mind. Knowing how competitive the deal market is, I strive to make the due diligence process as smooth as possible for clients.
