Brighton, MA The Boston Landing residential team has come up with a new name and pre-leasing schedule for the residential tower at Boston Landing, a 17-story, 295-unit luxury apartment high-rise near the New Balance global headquarters. The apartment building will be known as Lantera. This is the latest milestone for Lantera, which began pre-leasing tours in mid-March and will open to residents in May.

Designed by Elkus Manfredi Architects, Lantera offers a mixture of studios, one, two and three-bedrooms, and includes 38 on-site affordable units. Lantera offers views of downtown Boston and Cambridge, 16,500 s/f of ground floor retail with restaurants and specialty shops, a 20,000 s/f outdoor courtyard with a pool, cabanas, space for yoga and fitness classes, above-grade parking, active lounges, a pet grooming room, bicycle storage and bike repair stations.

Lantera is positioned in Boston's Allston-Brighton neighborhood adjacent to the newly opened Boston Landing MBTA commuter rail station, connecting residents to downtown Boston. Lantera residents will be in close proximity to the Charles River and local parks, Stop & Shop supermarket, restaurants in nearby Brighton Center, and access to Soldiers Field Rd., Storrow Dr. and the Mass. Pike in addition to 80,000 s/f of retail, restaurants and sports-based amenities at Boston Landing. Within just two miles there are a multitude of higher education institutions, including Boston College, Boston University, Harvard University, Harvard Business School and MIT.

Home to the New Balance World headquarters, the 15.2-acre mixed-use development at Boston Landing also includes the Boston Bruins Practice and Training Facility at NB's recently opened Warrior Ice Arena. The Boston Celtics are set to relocate their practice and training facility to Boston Landing with opening scheduled for summer 2018. Recently opened dining and retail options at Boston Landing include Rail Stop Restaurant & Bar, Kohi Coffee Company, Flatbread Company Brighton and Brighton Bowl, the New Balance flagship store, NB Fitness Club and Cambridge Naturals (opening summer 2018). Bose Corp., Roche Diagnostics, Proteostatis Therapeutics and Mass Innovation Labs are also located at Boston Landing.
