J.K. Scanlan begins 105,000 s/f Hyannis Youth and Community Ctr.

July 16, 2008 - Construction Design & Engineering

J.K. Scanlan Company, Inc. has begun the new 105,000 s/f Hyannis Youth and Community Center (HYCC) building. The project will provide a setting for the community to take part in recreational and athletic activities.

The HYCC will be a two-story building including two ice-rinks, support spaces, and a 12,500 s/f gymnasium with an elevated track. There will also be a teen center, concession area, multipurpose and administrative offices. A playground will be constructed outside of the building for outdoor recreation.

J.K. Scanlan's construction team includes project executive, Craig Gabri, project manager, Seth Adams, assistant project manager, Judith Audette, and project supervisor, Mel Dishman. Architectural services are provided by Bargmann Hendrie + Archetype, Inc.

J.K. Scanlan Co. is a construction management, general contracting and design/build firm serving a variety of commercial, institutional, health care and private clients throughout the New England area
