Polaris Engineering Corp. merges with Hancock Associates

July 16, 2008 - Construction Design & Engineering

Polaris Engineering Corp. has merged with Hancock Associates with headquarters in Danvers, and branch offices in Marlborough, Lakeville, Chelmsford and Salem, N.H.

The merger allows Polaris-Hancock Engineering in Chelmsford to offer a wider scope of services to its clients while maintaining its consistent prompt and value-added services. Hancock has been a top service provider in Mass. and N.H. for over 30 years.

Combining similar engineering and surveying philosophies will allow for a seamless transition. The merged firms look forward to continuing their relationship with its clients by adding the strength of the Hancock team to its branch office located at 313 Littleton Rd., off Rte. 110.
