Elkus Manfredi to design Mintz Levin Boston office

August 17, 2018 - Construction Design & Engineering

Boston, MA Mintz Levin is undertaking a new design for its offices at One Financial Center. The firm extended its lease in the building for 15 years commencing on July 1, 2019. Mintz Levin, which has seven other offices in the U.S. and London, has been a tenant at One Financial Center since 1984. The firm's leadership has engaged Colliers International to manage the project and Elkus Manfredi Architects to help transform the Boston office into an efficient and flexible space that will meet the needs of its clients and support the firm's staff in a modern, collaborative environment. Suffolk is the general contractor.

Elkus Manfredi will draw upon its signature cross-industry design approach, combining features of such diverse project types as hospitality, residential, and hi-tech design with its extensive experience in designing for large law practices.

The office will provide a collaborative, visually inviting environment for staff, with the highest standard of materials and finishes utilized throughout, the best ergonomics, and advanced systems installed for important environmental functions such as lighting, acoustics, and air quality. Adjacencies will be carefully considered to maximize efficiency; meeting spaces will be generous and varied to support different collaborative needs, balanced with private spaces for quiet, focused work. When complete, the new office will occupy 206,000 s/f on seven floors.

"Mintz Levin is a leader in thinking about how its new office can best support its attorneys and staff and, how it can help the firm's legal teams do their best work for their clients," said Elizabeth Lowrey, principal at Elkus Manfredi. "The redesigned Boston office will be comfortable and welcoming for all, providing operational efficiency and the flexibility to evolve as the firm's business and functional needs respond to opportunities yet to come. We are thrilled to work alongside Mintz Levin's visionary leadership to transform their premier office space into a smart, dynamic environment that will carry the firm forward far into the future."

"From the start, we were impressed with the way Elkus Manfredi approached our project – they took the time to understand who we are as a firm, our work as attorneys and how we serve our clients," said Michael Fantozzi, the managing member of Mintz Levin's Boston office. "They are designing a space that we believe reflects the firm today and our plans for the future."
