SLAM promotes four to senior associates

January 18, 2019 - Connecticut

Glastonbury, CT According to the S/L/A/M Collaborative (SLAM), the following team members have been promoted to senior associate: Tracy Caisse, AIA, NCARB; Eleana Lynch, NCIDQ, IIDA, LEED AP, WELL AP; John McClure, Assoc. AIA; and Robert Zygmunt, PE, SECB, LEED AP.

Caisse joined SLAM in 2005 and is a registered architect, serving as a designer and healthcare planner who manages and provides technical expertise for the firm's national healthcare and medical education projects. With an eagerness to expand her knowledge, Caisse actively attends national conferences and has presented topics on patient-centered care at the Planetree International Conference. A leader within the firm and local organizations, she is a director on the board of Professional Women in Construction's CT chapter. In addition to serving the board, she also serves on multiple committees focused on mentoring and providing opportunities for students interested in pursuing careers within the architecture, engineering, and construction industries.

Lynch joined SLAM in 2007 and currently serves as lead interior designer on higher education projects with a focus on health sciences facilities across the country. As both a member of the International Interior Designers Association and a LEED AP, Lynch completed a WELL Accredited Professional and will utilize her certification to create interior spaces that enhance the health and well-being of its users.

McClure joined SLAM in 2008 and currently serves as the director of marketing. He directs the firm's business development, marketing, brand, and public relations initiatives, and manages a team of talented marketing professionals. McClure is an associate member of the American Institute of Architects. He brings to his role a keen eye for design, love of architecture and understanding of the industry from the business side.

Zygmunt joined SLAM in 2007 and serves as a structural engineer in the corporate, municipal, hospital, laboratory, education and entertainment resort markets. Zygmunt is a registered engineer in the state of Connecticut and was appointed chairperson of the Connecticut Structural Engineering License Committee and a member of the Connecticut Structural Engineers Coalition, and National Council of Structural Engineering Associations (NCSEA). He also is a committee member on the NCSEA and Connecticut chapter of the Structural Licensure Committee.
