NAI Hunneman's James, Boudrot, Gilkie, Gallagher hired as brokers

July 30, 2008 - Front Section

NAI Hunneman has been selected as the broker for the Edgewood Office Park, a 43-acre, build-to-suit development.

The suburban office team from NAI Hunneman, Steve James, executive vice president/principal; James Boudrot, senior vice president; David Gilkie, senior vice president; and Evan Gallagher, senior associate, will be leading the leasing and marketing efforts for the office park.

The team was chosen for their ability to identify large tenants and their regional expertise in leasing.

The NAI Hunneman suburban office team has been active this year.

"Edgewood Office Park offers the first class office environment and the expansion opportunities that growing companies need," said Boudrot. "The Gutierrez Co. has a history as an excellent landlord providing innovative solutions for their tenants."

The Gutierrez Co. plans for Edgewood Office Park include a three-building, mixed-use, class A office complex totaling 600,000 s/f.

"We are excited to be working with NAI Hunneman on this project," said Doug Fainelli, VP of development of The Gutierrez Co. "With the experience and success of the suburban team we anticipate moving forward on the Edgewood Office Park development in the coming months."

The complex will be along Rte. 62, three miles from I-93 and I-95. and about one mile from the North Wilmington MBTA Commuter Rail stop. Zoned for industrial and office use the overall site is also masterplanned and permitted to include first class residential apartments. The project encompasses the redevelopment of the former state-owned JT Berry Center site.
