C&W Services, Inc. and Alutiiq Logistics & Maintenance Services, LLC form joint venture

February 01, 2019 - Owners Developers & Managers

Auburndale, MA A new joint venture has been formed between C&W Services, Inc. – one of North America’s leading facility services companies – and Alutiiq Logistics & Maintenance Services, LLC (ALMS) – a certified small, Alaska native-owned business and wholly owned subsidiary of Alutiiq, LLC (Alutiiq). This JV was formed to help clients meet the highest standards of facility performance while achieving their diversity spending goals.

To be known as Alutiiq C&W Services, LLC – the new JV will provide services including janitorial, maintenance, controlled environments cleaning, production environment maintenance, landscaping and office services to clients, including those with secured/sensitive facilities, across North America.

The JV is participating in the U.S. Small Business Administration’s (SBA) Mentor-Protégé Program, under which the JV is qualified to bid on and perform certain set-aside contracts. Through this program, mentors offer their protégés valuable mentoring to develop the protégé’s capabilities in various areas.

“We’re excited about the potential of this collaboration to bring leading-edge facilities services to our customers,” said Paul Bedborough, chief executive of C&W Services. “As a company, we have long been committed to developing a highly skilled workforce that can address customers’ critical need for safe and efficient facility service delivery. The SBA Mentor-Protégé program is a very effective means for C&W Services to support ALMS with the deep resources in innovation, subject-matter expertise and employee development that we have as a 65-year-old, business. We also look forward to helping ALMS grow in the private sector, where C&W Services’ blue-chip client roster of corporations, universities and public venues are highly supportive of supplier diversity.”

“ALMS looks forward to a prosperous and rewarding relationship with C&W services,” said Greg Hambright, president & CEO of Afognak Native Corp. (Afognak), which wholly owns ALMS’ parent company, Alutiiq. “The SBA Mentor-Protégé program provides outstanding mutual benefit to the participants and federal government. The JV will demonstrate the benefit to the government that is possible when two highly qualified businesses join together to perform valuable services. As an Alaska Native company, we are always striving to provide the best possible service for our customers to benefit our Alaska Native shareholders.”
