Through the Lens - Turner Const. employees set out to make a difference

August 30, 2019 - Front Section

Boston, MA Employees in Turner Construction Company's offices around the world have joined forces with charities and organizations through community service in celebration of the company's 117th anniversary, which occurred May 3.

Turner employees set out to make a difference in communities through a wide-range of activities including repairing homes, cleaning parks, preparing and delivering meals to the elderly, cooking food for veterans, feeding the homeless, working with kids with cancer, and many other rewarding activities.

In Massachusetts more than 200 Turner volunteers donated their time and energy at fifteen different organizations over the course of five weeks. As part of their volunteer efforts, Turner employees participated in a variety of activities including building a backyard tree house, preparing and serving meals, organizing toy and donation drives, and other cleaning and renovation projects.

"We work hard to improve the communities we serve through the buildings we build," said Kent Kunkel, vice president and general manager. "For Turner, our commitment to the community goes beyond our work site. We are committed to making our communities stronger through service activities on Founders' Day and events throughout the year. This connects our people; creates opportunities for relationship building in our communities; and reinforces the values in which Turner was founded."
