Marshfield, MA On Saturday October 26, agents from the Jack Conway, Marshfield office participated in the annual pumpkin carving event held at Dandelion Park to benefit the Molly Foundation, a local non-profit organization aimed to raise funds and awareness for the town and it's residents. The fund was originally established in the memory of a Molly Fitzgerald, a loal teen who tragically passed away in 2006.

Jack Conway provided pumpkins for the carving extravaganza, which was one of many events sponsored by the foundation to support charitable and community service projects in the town.

“Each year our office contributes pumpkins and helps out with the kids who are carving,” said Doreen Corsano, local agent and board member with the Molly Fund. “Money raised at this and other Molly Fund events help support college scholarships, public school programs, and community service projects in our town—all in memory of Molly.”
