Ricci Greene Assoc. relocates office to Providence

September 11, 2008 - Rhode Island

Ricci Greene Associates (RGA), a justice design and planning firm, has moved its Rhode Island office to a larger facility at 111 Chestnut St., said Ken Ricci, FAIA, the firm's president. RGA first opened a local office a year ago to more efficiently service its many clients throughout Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut. Firm associate Ryan Critchfield, AIA, heads the office, which handles courthouse, corrections and juvenile detention center projects.

"We've taken on a growing number of projects in the area over the past few years, and it makes a lot of sense to have people on the ground, close to the project sites," said Ricci. "This allows us to more easily deliver the high standards of client service that we demand of ourselves."
