SELT breaks ground on the Mathey Center for People and Nature

August 06, 2021 - Northern New England

Epping, NH On June 16th, the Southeast Land Trust of New Hampshire held a groundbreaking ceremony to celebrate the construction of the Mathey Center for People and Nature at Burley Farms. Seven years in the making, the new center will serve as SELT's permanent headquarters and will feature office and programming space to increase their nature-based engagement.

SELT is partnering with construction manager Chapman Construction/Design and Sheldon Pennoyer Architects on this two-story wood-frame building. The center will be constructed using high-performance building practices.
