Buck joins Bowdoin Construction as an assistant project manager

August 20, 2021 - Construction Design & Engineering

Jason Buck

Needham Heights, MA According to Bowdoin Construction, Jason Buck has joined the firm as an assistant project manager.

Buck is a Wentworth Institute of Technology graduate with a degree in Construction Management. During the course of his studies, he gained valuable hands-on industry experience through the school's co-op program.

Bowdoin Construction vice president Andrew Buckman said, "Jason showed enthusiasm and confidence in his ability to help move projects forward in a timely and efficient manner right from the start. We appreciate his capabilities with project management tools and technology. Jason has already proven to be a strong contributor to our team."

Founded in 1973, Bowdoin Construction is a premier provider of construction management, general contracting, and design build services throughout New England.
