December 31, 2021 - Spotlights

Dennis Swart, AIA
DJSA Architecture

What was the biggest lesson you learned while working during the pandemic? Throughout the pandemic we continually assessed issues related to project delivery and efficiency in business operations. However, one of the positives that was highlighted by the pandemic was that our greatest strength as a firm is our diversification of work. At DJSA, we collaborate with a wide array of clients and project types, this has provided us with a broad base of projects that utilizes the strengths of our diverse team members. We are not a “niche” firm but we are a firm well versed in many areas that can provide great service to our diverse client base.
