Interstate Electrical Services

What was the biggest lesson you learned while working during the pandemic? Safety and communication were, and always will be, our top priorities. When the pandemic hit, we utilized numerous avenues to take these priorities to the next level. We understood this was unprecedented times and it was more important than ever to heighten our communications and safety protocols to ensure our Team was protected and informed.

Also, it was extremely important to us that everyone remained employed and secure. We used the time to conduct many informative and certification type trainings in a wide array of areas. These efforts further strengthened our team allowing us to emerge from the pandemic safely and as a unified family.
