Current president and co-founder, Paul McGinn plans to retire from his role, effective March 31, 2022.

“As a member of the original team that founded MarketPlace Development, Paul has been instrumental in the growth and success of the company and I am thankful for his long-standing leadership and commitment to MarketPlace,” said Stephen Karp, chairman, New England Development. “Appreciating the history of our company, along with a strong vision of where we’re headed, and Michael’s extensive experience and background has provided him with the strategy, creativity and leadership skills to take on this new role.”

During his time at MarketPlace, he has been responsible for directing new business development, merchandising, leasing, and strategic planning.

As president of MarketPlace Development, DiCosola will direct the development, management and leasing for all MarketPlace Development projects, including Boston Logan International Airport, Philadelphia International Airport, Washington Dulles International Airport and Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport.

“There is no one who knows the MarketPlace Development company and this industry better than Michael. His knowledge, experience and reputation in our industry is unparalleled,” said McGinn. “Since joining MarketPlace in 2001, he has been an integral part of our team. I am very confident Michael will do a terrific job of leading MarketPlace into the future.”

Having served as the company’s president since 2003, McGinn will continue to support MarketPlace Development in an advisory capacity.

“MarketPlace Development has shown incredible growth since its inception and continues to be at the forefront of providing airport passengers the premier experience through development projects and partnerships under Paul’s leadership.” said DiCosola. “I am excited and look forward to leading the company with new opportunities in its next phase, focusing on the business at hand along with my extensive real estate background and our talented team.
