2022 Women in Construction: Emily Lampert, Project Architect at Phase Zero Design

March 25, 2022 - Spotlights

Emily Lampert

What was your greatest professional achievement or most notable project in the last 12 months? In this past year I passed my final ARE exam and became a licensed architect in Massachusetts. It's been years in the making (education, grad school, intern hours, and testing) and it's my greatest professional achievement. I'm incredibly proud of the person I've become during this journey.

When you're not busy, what is your go to book or podcast to help you unwind? Lately I've been working to educate myself in all things personal finance. When I'm busy I love listening to a couple episodes of my favorite finance podcasts, "Financial Feminist" and "Girls That Invest."

What tips or advice would you offer to other women who are considering entering the construction industry? My advice to women thinking of entering the construction industry is shadow professionals to get a sense of which career route to pursue. In my experience, everyone in the industry loves to support the next generation. Reach out to a local firm and ask them to shadow a professional.
