FYI - Now you can search for and list properties in Florida

October 10, 2007 - Front Section

ReJournal.com has added links to the premier Florida property database on all three of our homepages; New England, New York and New Jersey/Penn. Go to www.rejournal.com and click on one of the aforementioned homepages and you will see a banner on the right side that links to the Florida property database (just look for the oranges).

The premier Florida property database is powered by The Property Sourcebook, the leading Florida Commercial R.E. Listing service in print & on the web, covering improved property, vacant land, and businesses for sale and property for lease. The database features a user friendly search interface that lets you search by four territories; North, Central, and South Fla. and the Florida Gulf Coast or by the entire state.

We encourage our visitors to take advantage of the premier Florida property database as it is not only a great place for researching available properties and listing your properties, it also produces informative location maps, site plans and floor plans for all the properties listed.
