December 09, 2022 - Front Section

Boston, MA According to High Street Residential (HSR), the residential subsidiary of Trammell Crow Co. (TCC), Carolyn Hewitt has joined the firm to lead multifamily development in the city. In her role as senior vice president, she will be responsible for sourcing, shaping and executing multifamily developments throughout the region.

Hewitt joins HSR from The NRP Group, where she spent five years as vice president of development.

In her role with NRP, she opened, managed, and grew the firm's Boston office. During her tenure, she developed more than 800 multifamily units valued at over $250 million. Prior to NRP, Hewitt held various management positions with Mill Creek Residential and Simpson Housing.

“Carolyn is an excellent addition to our growing team in Boston. As our first team member solely focused on growing our High Street Residential business, Carolyn will take the lead on sourcing new residential development opportunities while organically growing the HSR team in Boston,” said Sam Schaefer, senior vice president and leader of the TCC/HSR Boston office. “There is a huge opportunity to tap into the multifamily market, especially as demand for new, high-end multifamily development continues increase. We are excited to support Carolyn and capitalize on this growing market.”

Hewitt earned her B.A. from the Pennsylvania State University and has completed real estate coursework at higher education institutions including Boston University and Boston Architectural College. She is a member of CREW, NAIOP and ULI, and is certified as a LEED Green Associate.
