Bedford, NH Jesse Hepler and Brian Dano of SVN | The Masiello Group have each earned their CCIM Designations. After months of preparation, the pair earned this prestigious 50-year tradition of commercial real estate education and entrepreneurship.

For more than 50 years, the CCIM (Certified Commercial Investment Member) Designation remains the gold standard for commercial real estate professionals, including appraisers, asset managers, brokers, developers, investors, lenders, and other allied professionals. CCIMs complete a program of advanced coursework and training in financial and market analysis and demonstrate extensive experience in the commercial real estate industry.

“Expanding the CCIMs on our SVN team proves our dedication to better serve our clients and prospective clients with the highest degree of professionalism,” said Chris Pascucci, VP/managing director of SVN | Masiello Group. “We are always expanding our expertise where it matters most, and when it comes to commercial real estate, the more you know, the better equipped you will be to make sound decisions when advising your client. Knowledge is powerful!”

With their CCIM Designation, Hepler and Dano will provide their clients with proven expertise in financial, market, user, and investment analysis, as well as negotiations. With this real-world education, CCIM training helps them minimize their client's risk and maximize the return on their investments.

They will also be able to optimize the value of the real estate, help their clients make better informed decisions and develop a comprehensive commercial real estate strategy.
