2024 Women in Construction: Lisa Chirillo, Viking Construction Inc.

March 29, 2024 - Spotlights

Lisa Chirillo
Chief Accounting Officer

What has been the driving force behind your success in the AEC industry? My journey in construction began over 20 years ago. It was a time when the majority of women assumed administrative roles within the industry. Since then, the construction industry has evolved as more and more organizations welcome the value of women's contributions as they expanded into leadership positions.

I have always contributed my success to embracing leadership with a spirit of excellence and an opportunity to invest in the lives of others. Core values of loyalty, commitment and fiduciary care have always taken first place in my approach to both the principals of Viking Construction and those within the organization who, alongside me, support the day-to-day happenings of the company. I am a firm believer in leading by example while also cultivating a culture that encourages personal growth, new ideas and shared efforts that can be celebrated by all.

Challenges will certainly occur. It's all part of life in the business world. How we overcome those obstacles makes all the difference. Commitment, team efforts and clear vision have always been the footprint for the success that Viking Construction has, as its focus has always been to build strong communities and serve others. Service will always drive success.
