CORE hires Jones as vice president of acquisitions division

April 04, 2025 - Northern New England

Corey Jones

Portland, ME CORE, a full-service commercial real estate firm, has hired Corey Jones as vice president of the firm's acquisitions division.

"I chose CORE to bring my expertise back to Maine and make a meaningful impact," said Jones. "CORE is a high-performing team with a clear focus on creating value for its investors. When you invest with CORE, you work directly with the decision-makers — the people who are actively executing the strategy and driving results. We are intentional, disciplined, and committed to long-term success. I look forward to strengthening our investments and delivering lasting value for our partners."

Jones began his career in the Maine National Guard before earning a degree in Construction Management from the University of Maine. He went on to serve as a site superintendent and project manager for Shawmut Design and Construction in Boston, managing large-scale projects nationwide. During the pandemic, Jones transitioned to full-time service with the Maine Army National Guard, where he serves as a company commander. Most recently, Jones completed his MBA at Boston College.

At CORE, Jones oversees investor relations and capital raising as well as property acquisitions and dispositions within the firm's carefully curated portfolio. His approach is rooted in clear communication and disciplined analysis. With a background in leadership, operational excellence, and strategic execution, Jones brings a level of focus and precision that aligns with CORE's client-driven mission to deliver exceptional investor returns.

"Corey embodies the values that define CORE: precision, integrity, and a relentless drive to outperform expectations," said CORE president Josh Soley. "His background, coupled with his leadership skills and deep understanding of operations, make him a tremendous asset to our team."

CORE has established itself as a leader in niche market investments ensuring early access to opportunities in regions poised for significant growth. The firm's disciplined approach — keeping capital expenditures low while maximizing value — coupled with its fully integrated team of in-house experts has consistently delivered strong returns. For investors seeking a firm that combines elite-level expertise with a personal, attentive approach, CORE offers a rare and compelling opportunity.
