The groundbreaking ceremony was held on-site and brought together an esteemed group of attendees, including Connecticut governor Ned Lamont, local and state officials, Mozaic Senior Life Building Committee members, and future residents. The event celebrated the start of construction on what will be a flagship community for Mozaic Senior Life and a notable addition to Stamford's vibrant landscape.

The new development will span 483,888 s/f across a 15-acre parcel. The community will offer 164 independent living residences and 42 units within a health center dedicated to assisted living, memory care, and skilled nursing.

Amenities will include multiple dining venues for independent living residents, with complementary dining options available at other levels of care. A wellness and fitness center, complete with a swimming pool, will be built to promote resident health and well-being.

Additionally, the community will feature both structured and surface parking facilities. Construction is scheduled to finish in 2027.
