Interstate Electrical Services celebrates employees' contributions

July 18, 2025 - Construction Design & Engineering

Billerica, MA Interstate Electrical Services Corp. recently hosted its yearly Employee Appreciation Awards at its operations center, honoring the dedicated individuals who contribute to the company's success. The ceremony, led by Interstate president Jim Alibrandi, celebrated significant milestones and achievements within the Interstate family.

This year's event recognized the newest cohort of graduating apprentices. In a ceremony highlight, Alibrandi extended his gratitude to employees reaching significant tenure, with recognition spanning from 10 to over 45 years of service. The occasion also served as an opportunity to commend the employees who are retiring this year.

In his address, Alibrandi congratulated the collective impact of the Interstate team. “Your unwavering contributions have been instrumental in propelling Interstate to its current position in the industry,” said Alibrandi. “It’s truly an honor to acknowledge your hard work, steadfast commitment, and exceptional talent here today.”

“These apprentice graduates are the future of our industry, and we are thrilled to celebrate and support them as they embark on building a brighter future for our communities,” said Luiza Mills, senior vice president, Interstate. “Their collective talent and hard work are a true testament to their passion and innovation for the electrical trade, and their contributions will be invaluable to Interstate.”

In closing, Alibrandi reminded everyone in attendance of Interstate’s strongest core value: safety. “Safety is paramount in everything we do at Interstate,” said Alibrandi. “Every day, the number one goal is to go home the same way you arrived, healthy and safe.”
