Jackson hired by C&W as senior director

December 02, 2008 - Northern New England

Cushman & Wakefield hired Eric Jackson as a senior director serving the southern N.H. and northern Mass. markets. Jackson first joined Cushman & Wakefield in 1998 with a focus on commercial sales and leasing and left the firm in 2004 to pursue a Master's degree at the Mass. Institute of Technology (MIT) Center for Real Estate.

After receiving his Master's degree, Jackson spent two years advising private investment clients on real estate acquisitions, development and investment analysis.

Jackson is a licensed broker in Mass. and N.H. and is a member of the N.H. Commercial Investment Board of Realtors.
