LeMessurier expands enclosure consulting services with addition of Armanios

October 06, 2025 - Front Section

Rafik Armanios

Boston, MA LeMessurier, a leader in structural engineering, has expanded its enclosure consulting services with the addition of experienced leader Rafik Armanios, AIA, as director of enclosure and an increase in enclosure team members. This growth reinforces LeMessurier's commitment to providing high-performance, integrated building solutions by enhancing the firm's capabilities and team in enclosure consulting.

"Our clients are increasingly looking for a seamless, integrated approach to structural and enclosure design," said Bill Lovallo, PE, managing principal at LeMessurier. "By combining these disciplines, we can enhance coordination, improve building performance, and promote sustainability throughout every phase of a project. In response to this growing demand, we've built on our strong foundation of in-house enclosure expertise by expanding our team with seasoned professionals."

A Natural Evolution of Expertise

As a trusted partner to architects, developers, and contractors, LeMessurier has been integrating enclosure expertise into its work for years. This formal expansion builds on that track record, reinforcing the firm's holistic approach to advancing the built environment.

"Our clients know us for our deep technical expertise and collaborative approach," said Lovallo. "This evolution allows us to offer even more comprehensive service, mitigating risk and optimizing performance from concept through construction."

“I’m honored to join such a respected and forward-thinking firm,” said Armanios. “LeMessurier already had a strong base in enclosure consulting. We’re building on that by adding talented professionals and deepening our capabilities. We’re excited to support our existing clients with even greater depth, and to grow our reach across new sectors and relationships.”

Industry Impact & Future Growth

LeMessurier’s enclosure services are already supporting active projects across sectors, including commercial, healthcare, higher education, cultural, and institutional buildings. With this expanded team, the firm is better positioned than ever to deliver fully integrated structural and enclosure solutions on some of the most complex and impactful projects nationwide.
