Suffolk Const. and Becker + Becker celebrate 360 State St. groundbreaking

December 17, 2008 - Construction Design & Engineering

Representatives from construction management firm Suffolk Construction Company, Inc., investor and financier Multi-Employer Property Trust (MEPT), and developer and architect Becker + Becker joined representatives of the state of Connecticut and mayor John DeStefano, Jr. to celebrate the official groundbreaking for 360 State St., the $180 million redevelopment of the former Shartenberg department store site. The 700,000 s/f mixed-use development will include 500 apartments (including 50 affordable units), grocery store, additional retail space, parking garage and early childhood education center. The project is scheduled for completion in fall 2010.

"We are extremely excited to begin construction on this amazing project," said John Fish, CEO of Suffolk Construction. "Because of the leadership of the state, the city, MEPT, and Becker + Becker, along with the support from the surrounding communities, we have an incredible opportunity to deliver a first class project for the people of New Haven. Today is an important first step in that journey, but the best is yet to come."

Throughout the preconstruction and estimating phase of the 32-story residential tower project, Suffolk Const. worked closely with the development team, the New Haven building trades, and the city to ensure the project would benefit the surrounding communities.

The 360 State St. project has also been selected as a pilot project for the LEED Program for Neighborhood Development, and will include green features such as photovoltaic arrays, recycled and local materials, and a fuel cell. The project will be one of the first LEED Silver residential projects in Connecticut. A true transit-oriented development, it is located across the street from the State St. train station, one block away from the New Haven Green, and within walking distance of the many urban amenities.

"We are honored to be breaking ground on this historic site in the city and we are excited to partner with Suffolk Construction on the construction of this incredible project," said Bruce Becker, president of Becker + Becker.
