Stewart of Addison County EDC named Member of Year by NEDA

February 04, 2009 - Northern New England

The Northeastern Economic Developers Association presented its Member of the Year award to Jamie Stewart, executive director for the Addison County Economic Development Corp.

Stewart helped create the Economic Development Professional (EDP) credential in Jan. 2006. The Economic Development Professional (EDP) designation recognizes significant professional education and/or experience in the field of economic development or closely related disciplines. The EDP is one of NEDA's most successful initiatives. The program has added newly recognized professionals in every quarter since the program launch.
