Suffolk Educ. to manage two interior renovations at Brown Univ. dorms

February 12, 2009 - Rhode Island

Suffolk Education was selected to manage interior renovations at two Brown University residence halls - Caswell Hall and Slater Hall. Residence hall improvements will include the relocation of kitchens, changing of floor plans and renovations to the kitchen, lounges and restroom facilities. The project scope will also include MEP and utility relocations. The renovation project will be completed on an accelerated schedule.

The Caswell Hall and Slater Hall renovations will present logistical challenges to the Suffolk Education project team. The residence halls are located in the bustling center of the Brown University campus and are adjacent to numerous academic and administrative buildings and student/pedestrian passage ways, which will complicate construction material deliveries and storage. Another significant challenge on this project will be the complex MEP and utility relocation work, which will require careful pre-planning before the project team can begin the renovation process.

Suffolk Education has been expanding its portfolio of projects on the Brown University campus - Suffolk project teams have managed renovations to the Brown Bookstore, Lecture Hall and Barbour and Hegeman Hall.

, which were similar to the size and scope of the renovations planned for Caswell Hall and Slater Hall. Suffolk Education has recently managed successful renovation projects for additional prestigious colleges and universities, including Harvard University and MIT, among others.
