Hutter Construction Corp. www.hutterconstruction.com

August 04, 2009 - Northern New England

Ranked among the largest commercial construction companies in the state of New Hampshire, Hutter Construction Corporation manages to keep a low profile and maintain a small town, family-oriented personality. Nestled in rural New Ipswich in southwestern New Hampshire it's easy to see why.

Named after an area in Minnesota where its owners grew up, Hutter was incorporated in 1973. Originally, Hutter handled small renovation projects and masonry contracting. In the late 1970s, however, the firm began acting as a general contractor on larger projects and has remained on an upward growth pattern ever since.

Starting with a work force of two men, Hutter now has up to 200 full-time employees year round.
