HMFH Archts. to design 700-student Newport elementary school

September 10, 2009 - Rhode Island

HMFH Architects is working with the city to plan for a new 700-student elementary school, including pre-kindergarten to grade 4. HMFH will be working with educators and community representatives to design a single new "green" school on the site of the current Sullivan School in Newport. The new school replaces four existing elementary schools that are currently in poor condition.
